

Monster Crowd Sees The Yanks Undone

Tris Speaker Gives Brilliant Exhibition of Prowess for Invaders.

CLEVELAND JUSTIFIES PLACE IN RACE

Lee Fohl's Men Make Opportune Hits Against the Pitching of Fisher.

Twenty-eight thousand fans, fresh or weary from marching in or witnessing the Citizens' Preparedness Parade through the streets of Gotham, flocked yesterday afternoon at the Polo Grounds to test the preparedness of the Cleveland American League baseball team, which at present is showing the way to the other seven clubs of the Ban Johnson circuit.

The 28,000 fans were unanimous when dusk settled over Cogan's Bluff that in truth the former follies of baseball were no bluff this year, but that the game was thoroughly prepared to meet the best that the opposing teams in the league had to offer. As evidence they produced the unanswerable argument of the score, which stood 4 to 2 in favor of the Ohio nine.

Preparedness to these fans, however, is spelled in an odd way. SPEAKER is the letters used in the fans' simplified system. This is what was expected of him when he greeted the prolonged cheering that greeted his first appearance at the bat. He gazed over the throng with experienced eyes and adapted his first effort of the day to the call of the red, white and blue flags and streamers that were waved in his welcome. He just didn't have the heart to make those patriots feel blue right off the reel. So he obligingly beat the air at the three balls he hit by Ray Fisher.

Fans Laugh Too Soon.

"Ha! ha!" cried the fans. "This $80,000 man is second in the American League batting averages, and our schoolteacher pitcher has made him look foolish." This heard this cry and others of similar import, but all he did was chuckle. He figured the psychology of the situation perfectly. The cry of "see me strike out," he mumbled. "I did it. Now they wonder why I have such a reputation as a batter. I'll show 'em."

He certainly "showed 'em." Not alone did he hit a third with telling effect, but he also proved to the satisfaction of all that he could cover acres of ground in the outfield. A home run and two singles were his contribution with the stick, while his uncanny judgment of hard hit balls which seemed destined to turn the tide in favor of the Yankees in their ninth inning stand made it clear that despite his new uniform he could cover as many square miles as ever.

It was Speaker day, but here's just how the runs came which kept the fans in a hubbub and the red, white and blue streamers from the start to the unbecoming end.

The first run of the game was scored by Cleveland in the second inning. Fisher, who is supposed to be always good at his winter job and, as every one knows, usually good at his summer pastime. Gandil fouled to Pipp and then Fisher batted a tap to Howard, who hit a right and Turner, who hit a left, to the third base.

Wamby, for short, grounded to Peck, whose throw to Nunnemaker was low, and Howard scored.

The second run of the game was scored by Cleveland in the third inning. Speaker, having covered his fanning exhibition by two singles, again obligingly popped out after all looked well. Elmer Smith, another topnotcher in American League batting, walked. Gandil singled to right. Howard, with two strikes on him, was hit and the bases were full. On the next sacrifice fly to Hartnell Smith tallied. O'Neill singled, scoring Gandil.

Tris Comes to the Front.

These two runs were defended most successfully by the aforementioned Tris in the ninth after he had driven the ball into the right field stand for a homer in the Cleveland half.

Gedon raised the hopes of the throng at the start of the final inning by singling to left, only Speaker's sacrifice fly to right and Howard's sacrifice fly to left, and Peck were easy outs, but Nunnemaker came to time with a double to the right field bleachers. Ray Caldwell batted for Fisher and sent a drive to left which Graneley nailed after a long run.

The red, white and blue flags and streamers were rolled up and the disappointed thousands filed in parade time through the gates. Their attitude of preparedness was as strong as ever, but they had chosen a new prophet. His name was Speaker.

TIGER NINE IS FIRST TO SCORE AND KEEPS LEAD

Penn Vainly Endeavors to Overcome Three Runs of First.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.)

Princeton, N. J., May 13.—Pennsylvania was never able to overcome Princeton's lead of three runs, made in the opening inning, and the Tigers won by a score of 6 to 3 this afternoon.

The game was marked by several unusual plays. In the fifth Berry singled, stole second and went to third when Briggs let the throw get away from him. Smith batted for Berry and caught Berry between third and home. While the whole infield was occupied in putting Berry out Smith ran past second, only to be run down by Briggs, making a double play.

The Tigers started the scoring in the first inning, when hits by Tibbitt and Douglas and two errors netted three runs.

Spelman and Berry each found Link for three hits out of four times at bat, and the former figured in every Pennsylvania run. Link weakened toward the end of the game. In the seventh three passes, a single by Spelman and a sacrifice fly gave Pennsylvania two runs and made the score 6 to 3. In the next inning Link continued his wildness, and two passes and an error by Link filled the bases with two out. One run was necessary to tie the score, but Kautz lifted a long fly to Hoyt and the side was retired scoreless.
